Businesses can't function without reliable communication and small businesses are no exception. In fact, with the sometimes distributed and mobile nature of many small business users, good communication is an absolute necessity. With Novell® Small Business Suite, you get Novell GroupWise® 6.5, the premier communication and collaboration application. GroupWise provides an effective and innovative approach to collaboration services—an approach that delivers security, control and mobility, while reducing the cost of managing and maintaining essential communication and collaboration services.

Here's why GroupWise in Novell Small Business Suite is so valuable to small businesses...

Secure Email - In comparison to the other major email solutions (such as Exchange), Novell GroupWise is very secure. With GroupWise, you can embrace the Internet knowing that you are protected by field-proven security. You can maintain secure, authenticated communications (including instant messaging) within your organization as well as with organizations and individuals outside your firewall.

Premier Calendaring - A comprehensive, yet simple to use, calendaring system lets users schedule their time, coordinate meetings, perform busy searches and even schedule resources such as equipment and conference rooms. GroupWise calendaring and scheduling works across time zones and geographical locations providing a powerful way to coordinate schedules.

Block Viruses - As a small business, you don't have time to manage constantly evolving viruses. Novell GroupWise gives you the option to detect, control and eradicate viruses using any one of several partner products. Prevent virus damage to workstations and valuable data assets and avoid costly downtime or rebuilding expense with the preemptive options available for GroupWise in Novell Small Business Suite.

Cut Junk Mail - In addition to viruses, junk mail can curtail user productivity. GroupWise allows you to limit spam and junk mail through several methods including known spam hosts, bulk deliveries, sender verification, or address and domain blacklists. Stop junk mail before it ever gets to users. Users can also control whose mail they receive with mail from senders not in their address books automatically routed to a junk mail folder. Eliminate the hassle of junk mail for your small business and keep productivity high with GroupWise.

Web Access - GroupWise allows users to access their mail and calendar information from a wide range of devices and from virtually any location. Workstations at the office, laptops, Web-based browsers, mobile phones, and handheld devices can all be used to communicate and collaborate. GroupWise significantly enhances interaction among geographically dispersed teams without jeopardizing the security of information behind the firewall.

Remote Management - If you're a typical small business, you don't have (or want the expense of) dedicated IT onsite. Novell GroupWise can be completely managed remotely by a service provider or centralized IT staff. Web-based administration makes it simple to offload management freeing you to focus on your business.

With Novell Small Business Suite, you get a premium, enterprise-class mail/calendaring/scheduling system that's fitted for small business use. It's a powerful application with exceptional features that can help any small business communicate and collaborate more effectively. For example, Novell customer Gusmus Electric recently cut spam, preemptively blocked mail viruses, and virtually eliminated system viruses when they migrated from Exchange to Novell Small Business Suite with GroupWise.
